

Last month, our staff had was invited to experience the historic beauty of downtown's Gaslamp District from a unique perspective, courtesy of our friends at Another Side of San Diego Tours. Eight of us hopped onto Segways and donned super-stylish helmets – mohawks optional – to get up close and personal with many of San Diego's most scenic attractions.

Before the tour, our friendly hosts treated us to an entertaining video that instructed us how to see another side of the city that didn't include the emergency room. The less graceful among us were further reassured by a brief hands-on lesson followed by a practice session outside. We were thrilled to find the Segways surprisingly intuitive, and at breakneck top speeds of 12.5 miles per hour, grew a little disappointed that evolution had endowed us with mere legs.

After our amazing adventure, we all understood why Another Side of San Diego's Segway Tours are rated #1 out of 277 "Things to Do" in San Diego on TripAdvisor.com. For those who remain skeptics, we encourage you to give it a try – the only downside was relinquishing the curious contraptions at the end of the day!
